

No. 10*LYNX CONSTRUCTION MANAGEMENT

Two-year revenue growth: 357.69%
2014 revenue: $23.8 million

Christopher Moran

Lynx Construction Management has been riding South Florida's latest building wave. The company and its 21 employees logged 357.69 percent in two-year revenue growth, to $23.8 million last year from $5.2 million in 2012.

"Our work ethic, integrity and honesty have given us a stellar reputation in the industry, thus preserving our existing client relations and forging new ones," President Christopher Moran said.

The company specializes in new construction, renovation and remodeling for commercial, residential and industrial projects as well as infrastructure work. The company also provides design and construction management services.

The company invests in innovation, while operating in a rather commoditized industry. Lynx is developing an in-house cost-control system and software program, which includes predictive algorithms for cost schedules and workloads. The program enhanced the company's ability to provide services and products within budget, on time and exceeding client expectations, Moran said.

Lynx has also completed several key civic projects that address local community needs. These include construction of the new Miami-Dade County Animal Services Shelter, the renovation of the Sunny Isles Beach City Hall, and the enhancement of Pelican Community Park and Heritage Park.

"It has been our experience that innovation, when applied directly to improve one's operations or client business, can generate returns in operational efficiency, communication, collaboration and client satisfaction," Moran said. "We consider the growth and selective nature of our project portfolio an accomplishment, as it represents a similarity in vision and purpose between our clients and Lynx."

"To sustain our growth and exceed our objectives over the next 24 to 36 months, we believe it will take continued innovation, responsiveness to changing market conditions," said Wasim J. Shomar, CEO/chairman of The Lynx Cos., "and a focus on our vision in order to continue to meet and exceed our clients' objectives."

– Jeff Zbar